

DRAFT STUDENT LEARNING OUTCOMES

Art History Program

April 2009

Students will:

- 1) Demonstrate the ability to use visual evidence to analyze and explain human activity in the recent and distant past, in ways not necessarily communicated by other types of historical evidence,
- 2) Demonstrate analytical and communication skills to research and write papers and deliver oral presentations to examine in detail the art of a particular historical period and a particular medium,
- 3) Demonstrate the ability to explain the development of art over a broad geographical and temporal range that is indicative of the cultural values of the societies from which they arise,
- 4) Ability to apply art-historical skills to practical and creative problems encountered in citizenship and the workplace.
